Notes

- 1) You do not have to give the relationship to a nominee, but it can help us deal sensitively with matters after you have died
- 2) If you do not give a proportion (percentage or fraction), the death benefit will be divided equally between nominees.

Additional Information

Please read the following

1. This nomination has the force of a legal document.
2. You can nominate as many people as you want, or alternatively, one incorporated or unincorporated body (e.g. A bank or firm of solicitors or accountants).
3. Your nomination is not binding on the pension scheme. If, for some reason, the scheme does not pay benefits to someone you have named, we will pay the benefits to your personal representatives (the people who sort out your financial position after your death).
4. You should:
  - consider changing your death benefit nomination if your personal circumstances change
  - tell JSS if the nomination is for your husband, wife or civil partner and your marriage or civil partnership comes to an end
5. An individual nomination will not be valid, if, at the time of your death:
  - a nominee was your husband, wife or civil partner at the time you made your nomination and your marriage or civil partnership has since ended;
  - a nominee has died; or
  - a nominee was convicted of your murder or manslaughter.
6. The pension scheme must pay death benefits within two years of your death. If we are unable to track down anyone you have named, or if there is no valid nomination, we will pay any death benefit to your personal representatives.
7. If you get divorced or your civil partnership is dissolved, the court may order that all or part of any death benefit is paid to your former husband, wife or civil partner. If this happens, your nomination will only apply to the rest of the death benefit.
